You & CHC: A Path to Hope

You have been the path to hope for thousands of families this past year. Your generosity provided mental health services and help for learning differences to 9,600 children, teens, and young adults this past year.

In 2020-2021, our call volume increased by 150% at the start of the year, but our resolve only strengthened, because the life-changing impact — the “aha” moments, the sigh of relief from parents and caretakers, the clarity of a plan to move forward — is why we are here.

On behalf of CHC and the thousands of families we serve in our community, thank you for reaffirming your belief in the promise and potential of every child.

With your support, we were able to ensure that all SHS and EBC students have been able to access instruction on a daily basis throughout the pandemic – and at a time when we witnessed inequity across the nation around special education.

A Message from Our CEO

While 2020-2021 has been a year like no other, I am heartened to share the new and exciting opportunities that have emerged and that continue to evolve here at CHC. We quickly responded to those in need with innovative solutions. Telehealth and distance learning options became the preference for many of our families and have opened doors for services to clients in new areas. We were also able to increase our reach by 23% through various CHC programs ranging from clinical services to community partnerships to online resources, among others.

This was no small feat, considering the staggering statistics on mental health during the pandemic. Here in California, there has been a 151% increase in inpatient visits for suicide, suicidal ideation, and self-injury for children ages 10-14. UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital Oakland reported suicide attempts in the fall of 2020 were double that of 2019. And Black youth are disproportionately impacted, with a suicide rate twice that of their white peers. All this, on top of the 1 in 5 young people who live with learning differences and 40 percent of those who also experience anxiety and depression.

Here at CHC, in August of 2020, our call volume rose 150%, and families grew increasingly concerned about their child's learning differences and emotional behavior. Our response during this unforgettable year was a community effort that resulted in the following:

- Increased therapeutic services while balancing the needs of therapists and their families.
- Ensured that all 200+ students enrolled in the Sand Hill School and Esther B. Clark schools continued their educational programming with no interruptions through hybrid in-person and distance learning.
- Where possible, maintained in-person evaluations through the pandemic, so that help for young people and their families would continue uninterrupted.
- Continued and migrated our ever so important community education and parent support groups from in-person to virtual delivery. Our new Voices of Compassion podcast series met the community's needs with great success.
- Provided $1.85M in financial assistance in fiscal year 2020-21 – nearly double from the year before – resulting in increased care to traditionally underserved and racially diverse communities in San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties through our work in Ravenswood.

The challenges we face are the reason why CHC is here and why so many families return to CHC to receive expert care for their loved ones. I invite you to read on as we share how CHC has brought some of the most life-changing moments to families around the Bay Area. Thank you for being here for our community, and we look forward to working side-by-side with you for years to come.

With gratitude,

Rosalie Whitlock, PhD
Chief Executive Officer at CHC

Hope for Our Families and for the Future

CHC is a trusted community resource providing comprehensive and integrated services for learning differences and mental health. Our vision is to help all children, teens and young adults reach their promise and potential regardless of language, location or ability to pay. We accomplish this through expert evaluations and therapy, a personalized approach to learning, and community education alongside engagement designed to raise awareness, build partnerships, reduce stigma and ensure that no one ever feels alone.

The mutual respect across disciplines and ability to use quite different areas of expertise to diagnose and treat complex cases is extraordinary.

Courage in an Unprecedented Year

Our world was confronted with a global pandemic along with a reckoning of systemic racism. In a time when schools and support systems closed and learning issues and anxiety amplified, CHC continued to serve families by pivoting to telehealth and distance learning options.

Vidya Krishnan, MD
Chief Psychiatrist & Medical Director

This last year was a vivid reminder of my Hippocratic Oath. First do no harm and help the ill, I had promised as I started medical school. While I was not able to work in the COVID units, providing uninterrupted care and support to all our clients and families was a driving force for me through the last year. Today, witnessing the ongoing mental health fallout of the pandemic has only strengthened my resolve to forge ahead and broaden our reach to those in need. Thank you for making this work possible for all of us here at CHC.

Gratitude from the Frontlines

It has been a very difficult year and half, but it has also been a time of rich and deep learning about ourselves, our families and our communities.

At CHC, we teach and practice dialectical behavioral therapy (DBT) and encourage radical acceptance. Pain and hurt met healing and resilience. Isolation and separation also brought about a deep togetherness with those closest to us. This reasoning and understanding of our changed world resonated throughout the year. Ultimately, the increased challenges with mental health and brought more awareness of the importance of mental health in our lives — we can no longer escape the importance of mental health, despite a deeply rooted stigma.

So much of this period forced us to question and second-guess everything we thought we knew about the world, but I never doubted this: I was put here on this earth to help people. Many of you felt the same and demonstrated it through your generosity. With you, we met the challenges of the past year and together we came out stronger for the next.

What makes CHC special is its ability to provide high quality care with clinicians who speak various languages and understand--actually celebrate--the many different cultures of our families. This ability to serve a broad community is only possible through the support of individuals. Knowing that we have the backing to do this helps me get through those difficult times and gives me hope that together we can make transformational change.

With your support, we were able to ensure that all SHS and EBC students have been able to access instruction on a daily basis throughout the pandemic – and at a time when we witnessed inequity across the nation around special education. Now that we’re open again, the work continues. We have taken a steady approach to reentry, and that means ensuring that all students are safe, secure and emotionally ready. Thank you for standing with us during 2020–2021. You gave us the ability to forge ahead and make a positive change for so many.

EBC works with over 50 public school districts to provide a learning space for students who struggle in traditional classrooms, and our partnership and programming did not stop with the pandemic. This is because CHC has been a trusted community partner for nearly 70 years and it would not have begun without the pioneering support from individuals and philanthropic organizations. Thank you for making it all possible.

2020-2021 was full of unforeseen challenges and welcome opportunities for CHC and for everyone in our community. With the launch of the CHC Voices of Compassion podcast series, we were able to reach a wide breadth of audience in an extraordinarily short amount of time. This new program is entirely supported by individual donors and philanthropic partners. Because of your generous support, it was possible for CHC not only stay connected with parents and community members during a critical time, but also to serve a wider community of families beyond the Bay Area.

Thank you to our 2020-2021 supporters. This list represents cumulative gifts of $100 and above received for the CHC annual fund and special events from July 1, 2020 through June 30, 2021.

When families in the community are faced with the emotional challenges of mental health and learning disabilities, and the financial hurdles that come with it, it profoundly affects all of us. There are so few organizations that offer the same comprehensive range of services, delivered with such a high level of integrity and expertise as CHC.

I was on CHC's board for 9 years and have been an Auxiliary member since the 1960's. I knew that I would plan for CHC in my estate because it was the organization I had worked with the longest. As a result, CHC is now a beneficiary of a percentage of my IRA. It's one of the easiest ways to make a legacy gift.
